Raptor Ramblings...

Over the past few weeks I have been thinking a lot about my spiritual journey. It has caused me to do a lot of evaluating. Am I growing in my relationship with God? Am I where I need to be in my walk with God? Questions like these. Through this experience I have also been thinking of the people who have influenced my spiritual journey. One of those people is a guy by the name of David Platt. I don't know him personally, but have had the opportunity to hear him preach many times. I have also read a book he wrote called "Radical". This book has had a huge impact on my walk with Christ. I would like to share an excerpt from this book.

"I often ask members of our church if they are receivers or reproducers of God's Word. Let me illustrate the difference.

Imagine being in Sudan. You walk into a thatched hut with a small group of Sudanese church leaders, and you sit down to teach them God's Word. As soon as you start, you lose eye contact with all of them. No one is looking at you, and you hardly see their eyes the rest of the time. The reason is because they're writing down every word you say. They come up to you afterward and say, 'Teacher, we are going to take everything we have learned from God's World, translate it into our languages, and teach it in our tribes.' They were not listening to receive but to reproduce.

Now journey with me to a contemporary worship service in the United States. Some people have their Bibles open, while others don't have a Bible with them. A few people are taking notes, but for the most part they are passively sitting in the audience. While some are probably disengaged, others are intently focused on what the preacher is saying, listening to God's Word to hear how it applies to their lives. But the reality is, few are listening to reproduce.

We are, by nature, receivers. Even if we have a desire to learn God's Word, we still listen from a default self-centered mind-set that is always asking, What can I get out of this? What if we changed the question whenever we gathered to learn God's Word? What if we began to think, How can I listen to His Word so that I am equipped to teach this Word to others?

This changes everything. All of the sudden the pen and paper come out. Note taking is not the measure of how committed we are to making disciples, but if we are hearing God's Word taught in order to teach others, then we want to get it down as best we can. When we realize we have the responsibility to teach the Word, it changes everything about how we hear the Word.

It also changes who hears the Word. Now the Word that is being preached in a worship gathering or taught in a small group setting is subsequently being translated into contexts and spheres of influence represented all across the church. God's Word is no longer just being heard in a building; it is being multiplied throughout a community. It is multiplying because the people of God are no longer listening as if his Word is intended to stop with them. They are now living as if God's Word is intended to spread through them."

David Platt, Radical (Colorado Springs, Co: Multnomah Books, 2010), 101-103.

I pray that you will reflect on the words of the excerpt above, and that these words would live out through our lives as we seek to be reproducers of the word. I also pray that these words would be an encouragement to you.
